If the limit is reached, the match will be declared a draw; if not, the actual result will stand.
2. A player who triggers the clock without making a move will immediately forfeit. If a player knocks over the clock or board during the match, he will forfeit.
3. Any interference with the opponent's play or obstruction of their clock use will result in a technical foul. Severe cases will lead to forfeiture.
4. If a player disrupts the board after pressing the clock or presses the clock followed by disrupting the board, the player will lose. Disruption is defined as disturbing two or more pieces or knocking a piece off the board.
5. If a piece is placed between two points and cannot be identified after making a move, the piece should be corrected immediately. If the clock has already been pressed, the opponent will choose one of the two points as the correct placement. A technical foul will be recorded.
6. Players are not required to keep a notation of the tie-break game.
7. Video recordings may be used as evidence by the referees.
